Airless made affordable for Natio's plant-based skin care range

Australian skincare brand Natio is renowned for offering affordable, quality, plant-based beauty care, designed for a contemporary lifestyle. Quadpack is behind the airless packaging used to deliver its new Ageless Extra Firming Moisture Treatment and Advanced Lifting and Firming Serum. While airless technology protects the integrity of the natural formulas, the recyclable PP material safeguards the brand's green credentials.

Natio is one of the fastest-growing beauty brands in Australian department stores and the top-performing skincare and bridge make-up brand in Australian pharmacies.

Natio prides itself on its policy of ensuring customers pay primarily for the product and not for expensive promotions and packaging. Nevertheless, Quadpack developed two sophisticated airless systems keeping within the retail price of around AUD$20.

The serum is contained in a 30ml Yonwoo Solid pack; the moisture treatment in a 50ml Yonwoo Slim-line Jumbo pack.

The packs are decorated using a two-colour silk screen process. The white colour-matched packs feature a clean, elegant look and feel, that reflects the products' purity and therapeutic benefits.
