The tube with the power to wow!

Quadpack's ShapeUp family grows, with a new, monomaterial tube that dispenses creams in custom shapes

Squeeze it, swipe it or stamp it! Quadpack injects that wow factor into its latest packaging innovation: ShapeUp Tube. This fresh and fun pack dispenses formulas in a unique pattern: a sun, a flower, a logo or any geometric shape. Consumers are in control, squeezing the tube to reveal the formula in its special shape, which they apply by stamping or swiping it with their finger. Ideal for hand creams, sunscreen, hair styling wax or even blush, it's a cool new ritual that's just perfect for sharing on social media!

The brainchild of Quadpack's Creative Hub, ShapeUp Tube offers the ultimate in brand personalisation, but without the investment of a bespoke pack.

The way it works is deceptively simple. A customisable design plate snaps on to the head of the tube. When dispensed, the formula is extruded through the apertures of the plate. Sun and flower design plates are readily available, or Quadpack will produce a custom design to support a brand's storytelling

The 30mm diameter tube is available in different lengths, for capacities of 20-80ml. A monomaterial pack, ShapeUp Tube is made entirely of polyethylene (PE), with up to 50% post-consumer recycled (PCR) content. A five-layer version is also available, with an EVOH barrier for formula protection. The multilayer tube can incorporate up to 40% PCR PE. Tests with fillers show easy filling with no leakage, thanks to a liner in the cap, also in PE.

Brands can further make it their own with glossy, matte or soft-touch finishes and by playing with colours. Bold colouring of the design plate itself will draw attention to the pattern as the formula is dispensed, transforming its use into a multisensory experience.

The tube is the newest member of the ShapeUp family. ShapeUp Stick, launched a year ago, first opened the door to this new breed of personalised system.
